Irvine

IRVINE

The City of Irvine was incorporated on December 28, 1971, under the general laws of the State of California. We operate under a charter law form of government which was adopted in 1975, meaning we have a City Council-City Manager form of government. The City Manager is appointed by the City Council to function as the chief administrator of the City. City Council sets the policy directions for the City, and the City Manager is charged with implementing those directions. Additionally, the City Manager keeps the Council informed of City operations, prepares the annual budget, oversees special programs, and coordinates the various department activities.

Irvine is one of the nation's largest planned urban communities and encompasses more than 65 square miles. We contract for fire and medical services with the County of Orange, and have three independent districts: library, educational and utility services. Other government services include: animal control; building and safety regulation and inspection; general administrative services; planning and zoning; police; public facility/capital improvement construction; recreation and cultural programs; refuse collection and recycling; street lighting; street maintenance; landscape maintenance and transportation management.

Annual Events

Orange County's Largest Multicultural Festival: The Irvine Global Village Festival welcomes more than 13,000 guests to celebrate Irvine's cultural diversity and experience sights, sounds, and tastes of the world representing upwards of 50 cultures. Guests enjoy the mosaic of music and dance on five stages; immerse themselves in cultural and religious displays; indulge in international cuisine; and shop in the world marketplace. This family focused event tantalizes tots with hands-on art projects, games, puppet shows, and activities in a giant, interactive Kids Village. The event was promoted as the #1 activity to attend in OC by OC Register and was highlighted as the Best Festival for 2009 by OC Weekly.

Irvine Ranch Natural Landmarks

About the Land: The Irvine Ranch Natural Landmarks stretch in a giant green crescent from Weir Canyon near the 91 Freeway at the north end of the Irvine Ranch... connect with the Cleveland National Forest along the ranch's northeastern border... continue south where they include the massive regional open space network in the northern and southern hillsides of Irvine... and extend all the way to Laguna Coast Wilderness Park and Crystal Cove State Park near Laguna Beach.

Prized for its beauty, unusual geology and extraordinary diversity of flora and fauna, the Landmarks feature many special places unlike anywhere else. Among them: 5,500-acre Limestone Canyon, home to a striking geological formation called the "Sinks" that is frequently compared to a miniature Grand Canyon; the San Joaquin Wildlife Sanctuary, one of Southern California's largest coastal freshwater marshes; Irvine's beautiful and tranquil Bommer and Shady Canyons; the distinctive Quail Hill preserve, the life-covered tide pools of Crystal Cove beach, and more than 7,000 acres of coastal hills and bluewater views.

"The magnificent open space, parks and recreational opportunities on The Irvine Ranch provide natural beauty, relief from development and secure our unique Southern California outdoor lifestyle," says Donald Bren, founder of the Irvine Ranch Conservancy. "Residents of the communities on the historic Irvine Ranch have a better sense of their urban limits and the security of knowing these large green buffers around them will exist forever."

The Mountains: The expansive northern region of the historic Irvine Ranch -- adjacent to the Cleveland National Forest and the communities of Orange, Anaheim, Tustin and Irvine, contains more than 20,000 acres of permanently preserved open space and rare natural habitats.

These lands form a giant swath of open space stretching east from Gypsum Canyon to the Cleveland National Forest, and contain remote canyons, free-flowing watersheds, and important wildlife corridors that allow animals to move around the landscape.

The Mountains includes Weir, Blind, Fremont, Gypsum, Limestone, and portions of Baker, Silverado and Modjeska canyons. Loma Ridge, in north Irvine, preserves natural hillside views from the entire valley below. Besides its sheer expanse, the area is rich in biological diversity and supports an unusually diverse number of rare and endangered wildlife, plants and geological formations.

The Coast: Adjacent to the communities of Irvine, Laguna Beach, Laguna Woods and Newport Beach lie nearly 20,000 sprawling acres of natural wildland in the largest coastal open space remaining between Los Angeles and San Diego. Known as the South Coast Wilderness, these remarkable lands contain some of the largest remaining areas of a rare natural community known as coastal sage scrub along with oak woodlands, native grasslands and craggy rock outcrops.

From the ridgetops, visitors can experience uninterrupted views of the coast, Catalina Island and wide expanses of green. A network of hiking and riding trails traverses the area, offering a wide variety of outdoor adventures from beginner to advanced, from families to solitary nature-lovers
